BARRY STROCK CONSULTING ASSOCIATES, INC.

Information and information systems are key components for today's governments, utilities, school districts, not-for-profits and health providers. Changing information requirements and the obsolescence of computer hardware and software have become major concerns forcing administrators to consider either upgrading existing systems or procuring new systems. Because Information systems are critical for continued growth and efficiency, it is necessary to be sensitive to the changing information requirements and aware of the new available technological advances.

BSCA has developed a nucleus of experienced professionals in the field of information systems for municipalities, utilities (electric, gas, water and sewer), schools and colleges and health providers. BSCA is available to assist clients with their changing system requirements and can provide time tested services such:

- Designing responsive Management and Technology Strategic Plans
- Developing performance based Specifications
- Developing easy to analyze Request For Proposals
- Evaluating Vendor Proposals and Systems
- Negotiating enforceable Vendor Contracts
- Managing the System Implementation process

Barry Strock, co-author of the best selling Municipal Computer Systems Handbook, leads his team of professionals, to be responsive to current and future information systems needs for our clients.

Consulting services are available for the following applications:

- Accounts Payable and Purchase Orders
